HOUSE.

The House was called to order at 10 A. M. by Speaker Smith.

Prayer by Rev. Mr. Cox.

Journal of Saturday's proceedings was read and approved.

Mr. Hillyer moved to reconsider so much of Saturday's proceedings as relate to the loss of a bill to change the line between Glynn and Camden counties. This motion prevailed.

The report of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, declaring that it is the opinion of said committee that L. C Jones is not a citizen of Macon county, and that his seat as member from said county should be declared vacant, was taken up. The evidence submitted to the committee was read. The report of the committee was adopted.

Mr Hoge moved to suspend the rules to take up for a third reading a Senate bill to repeal the 20th section of the appropriation act of 1870. The motion prevailed and the bill was passed.

The Senate bill in relation to public printing was, on motion of Mr. Simmons, of Gwinnett, taken up and passed.

On motion of Mr. Graham the Senate substitute for the House bill to appoint a joint committee to investigate the affairs of this State was taken up and adopted.

The unfinished business of Saturday, to-wit: the bill to change the line between the counties of Gwinnett and DeKalb.

Mr. Goldsmith favored the bill.

Mr. Simmons, of Gwinnett, moved to amend the bill by cutting off Stone Mountain from DeKalb and adding it to Gwinnett.

Mr. Goldsmith said that Mr. Jones, of Gwinnett, Senator Candler, himself, and the parties to be affected by the bill, favor it.

Mr. Simmons, of Gwinnett, opposed the passage of the bill, urging that the people of Gwinnett are unwilling to have their county cut up.

Mr. Simmons' amendment was lost.

Mr. Simmons then moved to postpone indefinitely. Lost.

The bill was passed.

The special order of to-day, to-wit, the resolution by Mr. Bacon, declaring that in all cases where the credit of the State has been loaned to railroad companies in disregard of the constitutional provisions and in violation of the same, whether by issuing to said companies of bonds of this State, or by placing the indorsement of the State upon the bonds of said companies, said bonds and indorsement of the State so issued and made in violation of law, are without binding force upon the State and should be declared null and void, was taken up.

Mr W. D. Anderson was opposed to hasty action in any matter affecting the credit of the State.

Mr. Scott moved to refer the resolution to the Judiciary Committee, with instructions to report at an early day.

Mr. Cumming thought the proposition was too plain to need reference, besides time presses and if action is promptly taken no one but guilty parties and sharpers will be hurt. The adoption of such a resolution will put parties upon notice that bonds issued in violation of plain law will not be held as binding upon the State.

Mr. Scott thought that it would not be doubted that some Railroad bonds have been legally issued, and this resolution would throw a cloud over all bonds, good as well as bad, and as all parties are bound to take notice of the law, just as well before as after the adoption of this resolution.

Mr. Rawls thought there was no need to refer the matter, and said that he was opposed to paying one cent of bonds illegally issued, and at the same time he would always favor paying all bonds legally issued.

Mr McMillan said that the resolution was skilfully drawn, and tracked the law and Constitution, and ought to be now adopted.

Mr. Jackson said the resolution did not look to repudiation, but that he would always oppose paying bonds illegally and fraudulently issued; if this resolution is adopted the whereabouts of these bonds will be discovered.

Mr. Richards called the previous question. Call sustained.

Motion to commit was lost, and the resolution was adopted.

A bill to secure to educational purposes the funds now due to the department of education, to fund the same, etc; and a bill to amend the act to establish a system of public instruction approved 1870, reported by the Committee on Education, were read the first time and three hundred copies thereof were ordered printed.

A resolution by Mr. McMillan, instructing the joint committee to investigate the affairs of this State, to have warrants issued for the arrest of parties who are shown to have committed crimes or misdemeanors, etc., and to make demands upon other States for the return of such offenders to this State, was adopted.

BILLS ON THIRD READING.

Bill to charter the Rome and Raleigh Railroad Company. Passed.

Bill to amend the acts relative to fees of the Clerks of Chatham Superior Courts and of Savannah City Court and the Sheriffs thereof, was passed.

Bill to repeal an act to organize District Courts. Lost.

Bill to regulate the trial of causes of Equity and law in the Superior Courts, was lost.

Bill to provide for certain sales, to provide for the redemption by vendor, etc., was read the third time.

Mr. McMillan, as the author of the bill, explained its features and the reasons which prompted him to introduce it.

Mr. Cumming explained the reasons which prompted the Judiciary Committee to report adversely to the passage of the bill.

The bill was recommitted.

The bill for the relief of M. J. Griffin, of Lowndes county, was lost.

The bill to make it legal for levying officers to sell certain property, without exposing the same at the Court House, was passed.

The House then adjourned until 3 P. M.

The Donation to the State University.

Editors Constitution: Within the past few days a bill was introduced into the representative branch of the General Assembly, proposing to give to the University at Athens half a million of dollars in bonds, as recommended in the message of acting Governor Conley. With your permission, I desire to say a few words in reference to the proposed measure. I will premise that there is not in the State a more ardent friend of education in all its grades, from the lowest to the highest, than the writer. Nor am I one of those who consider money expended for educational purposes as so much squandered. On the contrary, I believe that funds judiciously invested in this way will yield a far richer income in the development of the resources of the State, than the same amount can be made to yield from any other investment. I desire to say further, that I am not an enemy to the University, but would feel as much pride as any other citizen in seeing it placed upon such a foundation as would enable it to furnish educational advantages to the youth of the State, equal to those afforded in any of the institutions of the highest grade in the old world. What I say in this connection, then, must not be construed as against the University, but rather as a plea for other institutions of learning which have done the State some service, and which have a right, therefore, to ask that their interests be duly protected in any legislation that may be adopted. You will please bear with me while I state, as briefly as possible, some of the grounds of the claim to protection herein set up.

Emory College and Mercer and Oglethorpe Universities all graduated their first classes about the year 1841. Since that time, notwithstanding the interval of suspension caused by the war, they have sent forth nine hundred alumni. These institutions have had essentially the same curriculum of studies and have occupied identically the same field of instruction with the University. As to the thoroughness of the instruction imparted, they are willing to be judged by their work. Of the nine hundred alumni above mentioned, one hundred and eighty have been ministers of the gospel, and about two hundred have devoted themselves, for a greater or less portion of their lives, to the profession of teaching. Nine professorships in the four male colleges of the State, are now filled by graduates of the denominational colleges. In the learned professions and in the other useful pursuits of life, the alumni of these colleges have always taken rank with the other graduates of our own or other Universities. The General Assembly, but the other day, elevated a son of one of these institutions to the high dignity of United States Senator. I regret that I have not a catalogue of the State University before me. I feel confident, however, that that institution has not sent forth from its halls, in the same period, more than half the number of educated young men. At an average of twenty per annum, the number graduated in the last twenty-five years—the proper working period of the interval of comparison—would amount to only five hundred, and I feel certain that the average taken is above the true number. The facts above given constitute a portion of the claim to protection which I am urging.

I beg leave now to say a few words more in reference to another ground of this claim. The number of communicants in the Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian churches in the State is about 225,000, almost one fourth of the entire population. If you include all who are in sympathy with these several denominations the number will not fall short of half of all the inhabitants. These people pay the great bulk of the taxes. Would it not be well to see to it that in giving the money thus raised to the University the legislation upon the subject be so shaped as to work no injury to the institutions which the great majority of the tax-payers have founded and sustained out of their own private purses? If this is not done, is it reasonable to suppose that the vast numbers of the people of the State who are thus wronged will remain silent under the injury? The thirty-five thousand dollars per annum, under the proposed bill, is an absolute, unconditioned gift. The Trustees of the University might continue the college curriculum under it, and make tuition absolutely free. It requires no prophet to fortell what would then become of the denominational colleges. If it be the best for the State, they ought to go down. It will be difficult to convince their friends that it is best.

If those who control the university will consent to make it a university proper, receiving into its classes, like the universities of Germany, only those who bring diplomas from colleges, or furnish other satisfactory evidence of preparation to receive this higher instruction, then, instead of opposition, they may expect cordial sympathy and co-operation at the hands of all the friends of denominatorial colleges who believe the State to be in a condition to make the donation.

THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

Every drop of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT communicates through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life, for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material. Scrofula, Syphilis, Consumption, Glandular disease, Ulcers in the throat, Mouth, Tumors, Nodes in the Glands and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumorous discharges from the Ears, and the worst forms of Skin diseases, Eruptions, Fevers, Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Black Spots, Worms in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all weakening and painful discharges, Night Sweats, Loss of Sperm and all wastes of the life principle, are within the curative range of this wonder of Modern Chemistry, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent powers to cure them.

If the patient, daily becoming reduced by the wastes and decomposition that is continually progressing, succeeds in arresting these wastes, and repairs the same with new material made from healthy blood—and this the SARSAPARILLIAN will and does secure—a cure is certain; for when once this remedy commences its work of purification, and succeeds in diminishing the loss of wastes, its repairs will be rapid, and every day the patient will feel himself growing better and stronger, the food digesting better, appetite improving, and flesh and weight increasing.

Not only does the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT excel all known remedial agents in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional, and Skin diseases; but it is the only positive cure for IMPURE BREATH.

How often its possessor experiences a distant coldness shown even from the best of friends, or perhaps the one most fondly cherished, from this source. You are ignorant of the cause yourself, the subject is so delicate—your most intimate friend will not mention it. Why not remove this one great barrier to your health, beauty and happiness, at once, by using that justly popular dentifrice, fragrant Sozodont, the most convenient, pleasant and efficacious gem for the toilet the world has ever produced.

☞ The latest turf thing of note is the advent of a fast trotter named "Stolen Kisses."

☞ The grand juries of Johnson and Emanuel counties, irrespective of political feeling, propose Judge Wm. Gibson as a candidate for Governor.—Sandersville Georgian.

All we have to say is, that the grand juries of Johnson and Emanuel, without distinction of party, did a very foolish thing, and should be ashamed of it.—Savannah Republican.

Personal.

We had the pleasure of a visit last evening from Colonel E. Y. Clarke, one of the proprietors and conductors of that sterling Democratic journal THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. Colonel Clarke reached the city yesterday as a visitor to the fair and will remain with us a few days.—Savannah News.

Love Ever Pluckey.

The latest from the Chicago fire is the following, illustrating the pluck in love.

A Chicago girl wrote to her lover in Springfield, Massachusetts, just after the fire, saying: "Our wedding day was set for next week, and if you will stand up with a woman dressed in a cotton shirt and her father's overcoat, come on." The brave youth telegraphed in reply: "Get ready, I will be with you."

The Work Begun.

Already the Democracy is moving. From the Rome Commercial we see that Polk county has moved off, endorsed the prudent course of the Legislature, and appointed Major J. W. Blance, L. H. Walthall, Colonel Jones and Mr. Bunn delegates to the Democratic Convention.

A resolution charging delegates to vote for no man who favors the "new departure" was lost.

The delegates were instructed to vote for an able conservative and a sound Democrat.

Catacazy Gone Up.

The Washington Chronicle announces that Grant told Catacazy beforehand that he would not shake hands with him at the reception of the Grand Duke Alexis, and that the telegraphic report that he did shake is all wrong. Right upon the heels of this terrific sockdolager comes the report that General Gorloff relieves Catacazy and his dashing blonde wife as Russian Minister.

To compensate the unfortunate Catacazy, however, he is to accompany the Grand Duke in his junketings.

Prolongation Again.

We learn that Attorney General Farrow does not approve the new departure of Gov. Conley in opposing the election of a Governor under the election bill passed over his veto. We remember the Attorney General made a bold stand in opposition to prolongation last year when the Republican Legislature attempted to prolong their terms of office. This opposition to Conley's attempt at prolongation is consistent, and we are glad to know that he again sustains the rights of the people.

Contemptible.

The Atlanta New Era, the organ of the Radical banditti, better known as the "Slander Mill," denounces the passage of the election law over Conley's veto as "ANOTHER REBELLION!" an "Unconstitutional act!" and invokes the interference of the Federal authorities and the inauguration of "another cycle of anarchy and confusion in Georgia."

It is to such partisan incendiaries that much of the evil which affects our unhappy country is to be attributed. It is their falsehoods and slanders that deceive and inflame the popular mind at the North, and it is their instigations of usurpation and lawlessness that outrage and incense our long-forbearing and law-abiding people.

Heaven speed the day when such political jackals shall no longer find sustenance and congenial occupation in Georgia.—Savannah News.

Tough.

Gov. Bullock, defending himself from the outcry against him, denies that he has profited to any material extent by the peculations in which he took a hand. "I had to wink at the stealing around me," he said, and pretend to take my share. If I hadn't done so, the knavish carpet-baggers and scalawags, with whom I was forced to associate, would have stolen me bodily."—Washington Patriot.

The Macon Telegraph asks the horrid question:

"What have Blodgett, Gaskill, et al., to say to this cruel speech?"

These are not all that should take Bullock's eloquent exculpation of himself to heart. There is acting Governor Conley, to whom Bullock transferred the gubernatorial chair with high encomium upon his trustiness. Then there is Judge McCay, and sundry others. Verily Bullock was unkind.

Deserved Compliments.

"Onslow," the fine Atlanta correspondent of the Augusta Chronicle, pays the following compliments, which we reproduce as deserved. Of the legislative work of the 24th he says:

"By casting your eye back over the record of the morning's work in the Senate, it will be seen that no idle bread has been eaten, and we believe that it would have easily passed for a week's hard work for the session of year before last."

Of the presiding officer of the Senate he thus writes, confirming the opinion we gave a few days back:

"Before dismissing the subject just noticed, I think justice demands that [illegible] been impartial—firm and courteous at the same time. We never saw a presiding officer that maintained more respectful relations between his position and members, or more uniformly preserved better order, or dispatched business with more ease and less offense. Mr. Trammel is a young man, and quite inexperienced, so far as we have heard, in the duties of a presiding officer of a deliberative assembly; but he certainly takes to the daily role before him with very unusual facility."

The Republican Programme in the Coming Election.

The Washington Chronicle thus forecasts the Radical programme in Georgia in the coming election for Governor:

The election law which has just passed, and which orders an election December 19th, gives no time for organization, and many of the best and most prominent men of the Republican party in Georgia deem it useless to waste time and energy contesting it, but prefer to save their strength for the more important contest next year, when State and county officers are to be elected, with Presidential electors.

Now take the Era's statement of Conley's purpose to hold over and resist the election, and we have the programme complete. Here is the Era's say:

"It will establish two State Governments, each claiming recognition as the constituted authority. This will call in the intervention of the National Government. In this event, Governor Conley will be sustained. He will be sustained because the bill under which he is sought to be ousted, is unconstitutional and revolutionary."

If this is not revolutionary we would like information on that point.

We are informed that Conley has resolved to prolong.

Was it Meant Treacherously!

While a few of the press of Georgia are pitching into the Georgia Legislature for being too conservative, the Washington Chronicle has begun its detailed work of prating about the revolutionary and reactionary tendencies of the Assembly. It says the following:

On the 16th instant a resolution was sent into the Senate "Committee on the State of the Republic," asking the appointment of a commission to estimate the losses of all the people of Georgia by the emancipation of their slaves, and demand of Congress compensation therefor.

Now the above resolution was a Radical measure introduced by Mr. Bruton, we believe. This matter is a piece of premeditated, Radical treachery, to throw upon our Democratic Legislature the odium of a movement, the most unpopular at the North of all things.

It was a sharp dodge of the Radical minority, sharp, but damnably infamous. We shall hear more of this Radically-born measure yet in Congress against the welfare of Georgia. It has a parallel in the case of acting Governor Conley's casting vote against the 15th amendment, to procure the reconstruction of Georgia, by throwing upon the Democrats of Georgia the odium of refusing to adopt that amendment.

The light begins to break in on Mr. Bruton's purpose. Sly, devlish sly, Mr. B., but none the less infamous.

How the Carpet-Baggers Do It.

Governor Scott, of South Carolina, is an Ohio carpet-bagger, and we are glad to know a man of thrift. He is building himself an elegant residence at Napoleon, Henry county, in this State, (Ohio,) which he will occupy when the inevitable time arrives for him at the South. That hour seems to be arriving pretty fast. He has bankrupted the State, made repudiation a rallying cry with all persons out of office who pay taxes, and got rich himself. Loyalty is its own reward.—Dayton Herald, 17th.

The above is suggestive. What Scott does the whole vagabond ilk of carpet-baggers do. Bullock will emulate Scott. Bullock, however, thought to have a Southern resort for his retirement. That $20,000 barn, for instance, would indicate a purpose to squat in Georgia. It may have been but a blind.

The whole pestiferous brood came South because unable to navigate North. Coming penniless, they leave rich. Sluffing to the front like scum to the surface in the seething of revolution, they have turned the disorders of a chaotic era to good account. Getting office by the bayonet or through the agency of organized ignorance, they have used place simply to make profit. They have thrived while crime was unpunished. They leave when law resumes its sway. Bloated with ill-gotten gains, they are taking their flight for nests providentially provided during the carnival of plunder in anticipation of the day when virtue and intelligence should be restored to the privilege of rule.

Scott is erecting a palace in his native Ohio. Bullock, if he escapes the convict's cell, will land, like a gorged vulture after a carrion festival, on his own heather in the classic shades of Albion.

Thus they do it. Successful scamps! Providential vagabonds! Astute buzzards! When will the South know their like again?

One thing we ask of them. Little it is, yet proper. It will cost them nothing. Therefore easy to their noble souls. The instrument of their rise has been, outside of their own rottenness, the ebony African. We demand it as due to Cuffee and Dinah that the retiring carpet-bagger, as he leaves forever these haunts of villainy, should kiss a melancholy farewell to the disconsolate and bamboozled negroes.

It will be something for the bereaved amendments to remember and cherish.

A Curtain Lecture.

We are heartily glad to be able to set our esteemed contemporary right on this subject, the more so as others fell into the same error by a similarity of reasoning. The publication of Mr. Crosby's statement in an editorial form, without comment or disapproval, betrayed us into the inference that THE CONSTITUTION approved, and we must confess to a painful surprise at the inference. THE CONSTITUTION has stood so manfully to the right that the least shadow of turning from it was painful to us. We again reiterate our gratification at being able to set it right.—Rome Courier.

Our worthy contemporary has done the neat thing in the above statements.

We must, however, take the privilege of giving a sort of a little Candle lecture, which, though predicated on the action of our friend, we give a general scope.

In an editorial the other day on the election law debate, we touched upon the matter in one aspect. We claimed for men in the party who should honestly differ in judgment from the prevailing opinion, courtesy and toleration. It is only when men sell their opinions that they deserve scorn, and not only the party lash, but the censure of all parties.

We must have the free exchange of truthful sentiments to determine party policy.

Now, carrying the idea of toleration into journalism, we think that there is too much tendency to suspect wrong, and there should be more liberality, in judging the course of trusted allies, when they may happen to say things that are not exactly in accord with the prejudices and opinions of others. No amount of past fidelity, however conspicuous, seems to be of a farthing value in the prevention of a hot excoriation on a moment's notice. Our papers are as ready as the other side to strike a faithful ally in the bitterest manner, without even the delay for explanation, about some unpopular opinion. There is too much readiness to believe evil. There is too great a tendency to quick suspicion of wrong.

This is wrong, all wrong. A friend that has stood true in a thousand conflicts is not to be struck because he does something that don't appear exactly right to us. Instead of lashing him, we should rather believe that [illegible] dare to do a just thing in the face of popular sentiment deserve credit. The loftiest courage is that that dares to do disagreeable right. The man or journal that has been true to right always earns the privilege of exemption from abuse of friends for doing unpleasant duty, and merits consideration for sincerity and conviction, if not for correctness.

Now our contemporary says that we have stood "manfully to the right," yet it lathers away at us at the very first opportunity, without ever waiting to hear from us. This was not right. We have certainly earned as do all journals that have stood "manfully to the right"—the tolerant liberality of our colleagues. And our friend should rather have taken up the cudgels against those who suspected us of wrong, than joined in a condemnation without grounds.

This is a matter of no slight importance. It is rare that honest people don't have some time to take unpopular positions. It is against the public good to proscribe and muzzle down such men.

Let us establish a tolerance, a charity, a brotherhood of just, liberal judgment, without which reason and right loose their best tribunal for adjudicating the great questions of public law, liberty and prosperity.

The Legislature.

The Senate passed the House bill repealing the act organizing the District Court. The acting Governor's approval is only needed to make it law. The House bill reviving the poll-tax of 1868, 1869 and 1870, and the House bill repealing the Akerman election law were passed. The Senate bill passed, restricting the rewards offered for criminals to $300 in capital felonies, and $250 in other felonies, was a good one. It rectifies one tremendous abuse of Bullock's rule. The right of Ordinaries to grant writs of habeas corpus when refused by a Superior Court Judge was withdrawn. To withhold State's property was made penal. Wives were allowed to recover penalties from dealers who sell liquor to their drunken husbands. The last three were Senate bills that go to the House.

The House decided L. C. Jones, the member from Macon, not entitled to his seat. This was right. He has been a citizen of Atlanta for two years. The Radical practice of carpet-bag representatives should cease. The Senate bill repealing the 20th section of Appropriation act, under which Bullock squandered hundreds of thousands of the State's money, was passed. Let us see if Conley will sanction. It stops the bung. It will test his sincerity for retrenchment. The public printing bill passed. The resolution to appoint four joint committees, one each for Bullock, the State road, the State road lease, and the action of the State road Auditing Committee, was passed. This is ready for Conley. A resolution of Mr. McMillan, looking to the arrest of plunderers of the State was passed.

The most important matter done was the passage of Mr. Bacon's resolution in regard to the illegal bonds of the State. While the State will pay every honest and legal obligation, she cannot and will not pay securities issued in glaring disregard of law, and binding on every body.

One step more is needed in this matter, and that is to issue an entirely new set of State bonds, guarded in the most careful manner, and then substitute them for the legal bonds out. This will at once correct this whole bond complication and utterly prevent future trouble.

We shall amplify this idea in a future issue.

The House then adjourned until to-morrow.

Speech of A. O. Bacon, Representative from Bibb, in the House, November 22, 1871, Upon the Veto of the Election Bill by Benjamin Conley.

Mr. Speaker: In rising to address the House upon this most important question, I am not influenced by a desire unnecessarily to consume the time of the House that I may hear the sound of my own voice, but I desire to vindicate myself and those who will vote with me, from the charge of acting rashly, and for the gratification of partisan feeling. In opposing the veto and urging that the bill should be passed notwithstanding it, I am as fully satisfied that I am right, as I am that the gentleman from Fulton (Mr. Jackson) is honest in taking the contrary position. In what I may say I intend no reflection upon him or his motive. I know him too well to doubt his integrity, and I also know too well the blood that runs in his veins. But, sir, in this matter I know that he is wrong, and I sincerely trust that before the time comes for him to cast his vote upon this question he will see his error.

The question before us is not one of policy or expediency, but a grave question of principle in the decision of which this Legislature cannot shirk its responsibility. To ascertain what is our position at present, in connection with this matter, let us examine very briefly, the legal question as to the constitutionality of this bill. And I confess, sir, that in attempting to argue this question, I am met by an unusual difficulty; it is so plain, so self-evident, that it is difficult to prove its truth. It is like an argument to prove an axiomatic truth. Every argument which has been offered against the constitutionality of the bill is a mere quibble. The power to pass this bill is conferred in Article 4, Section 1, and paragraph 4, of the Constitution. This paragraph has but three sentences. The first provides that upon the resignation of the Governor, the President of the Senate shall exercise the Executive powers, etc. The second provides that the Speaker of the House shall exercise these powers upon the death, etc., of the President of the Senate, etc., and the third provides for the special election, etc. The second sentence of this paragraph has nothing to do with the question before us, and may, for the purposes of this argument, be left out of the paragraph. Leaving this second sentence then, as to the Speaker, out of the paragraph, it will read as follows: "In case of the death, resignation or disability of the Governor, the President of the Senate shall exercise the Executive powers of the government until such disability be removed, or a successor is elected and qualified. The General Assembly shall have power to provide by law for filling unexpired terms by a special election." Now, it is difficult by argument to make this matter any plainer than it is made by this paragraph of the Constitution. In fact, no explanation of it is necessary, and I am only called upon to answer one or two quibbles made upon it by Mr. Conley, which he thinks are of sufficient importance to justify him in vetoing this bill. The position taken by him in his message is that this paragraph does not authorize the Legislature to enact a special law for a special election, but only authorizes the passage of a [illegible] construction of this paragraph. The power to provide by law for filling unexpired terms will certainly include the power to provide for filling an unexpired term. Again, the law does not give power to provide for filling unexpired terms by special elections, but by a special election, evidently contemplating that while there might be many unexpired terms, each one was to be filled by a special election, to be provided for by a special law. This must necessarily be so, because it is impossible by a general law to provide in advance for these special elections. If this were not so, the Constitution itself would have provided for these special elections with the same particularity with which it provides for the regular quadriennial election. In the latter case, it provides when the election shall be held, how the returns are to be made up, to whom directed, to whom transmitted, when and by whom opened, counted, and the result published. This is particularly specified in case of the regular election, because all the circumstances attending the government can be perfectly foreseen. But in the case of a special election, they cannot be anticipated. It cannot be foreseen at what period of the gubernatorial term, or at what season of the year the vacancy will occur, whether or not the Legislature will then be in session, etc. For these reasons the framers of the Constitution did not attempt to provide in it for the details of a special election. The same difficulties would be met if the Legislature should attempt to frame a general law to provide for all the special elections which would be held to fill unexpired terms, and it was the evident intention to give to the Legislature the power, whenever the vacancy occurred, to enact a law to meet the requirements of the particular case.

Again, if the power is limited to the passage of a general law to fill these unexpired terms, if such a law is passed, there must always be an election whenever there is a vacancy, and if so the Legislature would have no power to decide the question whether or not the President of the Senate should continue to exercise the Executive powers of the government. This could not have been the intention. Under some circumstances a special election to fill the unexpired term might be very desirable, and under other circumstances it might be inexpedient and improper. The vacancy might occur near the close of the term, and the President of the Senate may be a man of spotless character, possessing the entire confidence of the people; or the vacancy occurring earlier in the term may be caused by the ignoble flight of the Governor from the State, charged with high crimes and misdemeanors, and the President of the Senate may be a man who has not the confidence of the people, and who is believed by them to be particeps with the late Governor. It was evidently intended that the Legislature should exercise a wise discretion in the matter, and order an election when the public good demanded it, and to allow the President of the Senate to continue to exercise the Executive powers when no harm would result therefrom.

But Mr. Conley says that when Governor Bullock resigned, the law cast the office on him for the balance of the unexpired term. The law never made him Governor at all. It simply authorized him to exercise the Executive powers while he was President of the Senate during the unexpired term, or until a successor was elected. Under my view of the law his authority to exercise the Executive powers ceased when he ceased to be President of the Senate, and Mr. Trammel is now the only one authorized to exercise these powers. But waiving this point, it is plain that Mr. Conley has no right to exercise these powers beyond the time when a new Governor shall be elected and qualified. And without further argument, I call the attention of the House to the difference between the phraseology of the constitution here, and in another portion of it. Article 4, section 1 paragraph 1, prescribing the term of office of Governor, says he shall hold it "during the term of four years, and until such time as a successor shall be chosen, etc." The paragraph prescribing the time during which the President of the Senate shall exercise the Executive powers, says it shall be during the time of "such vacancy, "or until a successor is elected, etc." In the one case the term is prescribed, and in addition, he holds until his successor is elected, etc. In the other case, he exercises the Executive powers during the unexpired term unless a successor is, before its expiration elected, etc. I cannot see any escape from the argument. Mr. Conley, in a subsequent portion of the message, acknowledges that the Legislature has the power to provide, by law for a special election when the vacancy occurs, during the first two years of the quadriennial term. Verily, a Daniel has come to judgment.

I will not stop to argue the point raised by Mr. Conley, that under the Constitution he cannot send in the returns of the election as provided in this bill, but can only send them in to the next Legislature on the day after the two houses shall have been organized. I endeavored to argue that question fully when this bill was before the House on its passage, and I will not now repeat it. I then moved the amendment to the bill providing for sending copies of the returns to the President of the Senate, and I fear this House will yet rue the day when that section was stricken out of the bill.

Mr. Conley, however, as he was about to conclude his message found a mare's nest. He discovered that the bill in one place referred to paragraph three instead of paragraph two of section one article four of the Constitution. The answer to this is simple. In the first place, if error at all, it is a mere clerical error which cannot mislead as the bill states not only the number but the contents of the paragraphs. In the second place the reference is correct according to one edition of the Constitution. Sometime since a young man named Conley, the son of the author of this model State paper, made an analysis of the Constitution, and in doing so performed a labor which any lawyer of moderate ability and small practice would have done for a hundred dollars. It was issued in pamphlet form and if I am correctly informed, Governor Bullock paid him therefor out of the State Treasury over eleven thousand dollars. By reference to this valuable work, it will be seen that the paragraph referred to, has at the head of it the figure 3, although in the former edition of the Constitution it is a part of paragraph 2.

Now, sir, having endeavored to show what is the law of this matter, and that the bill is in entire harmony with the Constitution, I will briefly address myself to the question of what is our duty in the present emergency. I am unable to see how any member of this House can fail to conclude with me that it is his duty promptly to vote to pass this bill over Mr. Conley's veto. When the bill was before the House upon its passage, the state of the case was very different from what it is now. Then it was a matter in which each legislator was called upon for the exercise of his sound discretion. While I then thought, and still think, that, in view of the peculiar circumstances attending us, it was the duty of each Democrat to vote for the passage of the bill, still he could have cast his vote against it without the abandonment of principle, because the Constitution left it in the discretion of the Legislature to allow the President of the Senate to continue to exercise the Executive powers of the government, or to order a special election for Governor. It was purposely left open so that the Legislature might adopt that course which seemed to them best, and either course was consistent with law and principle. But the Legislature having decided upon its course, having by a large majority passed the bill to bring on an election, when Mr. Conley interposes his veto, with the evident design to deprive them of the privilege of exercising this clear constitutional right, and to secure to himself the benefits of an office to which he has never been elected, and to retain which he has no shadow of legal warrant, it is clear to my mind that to refuse to override the veto would be a most signal abandonment of principle. It is no longer a question of State policy, for we passed upon that when the bill was before us upon its passage, and after the full discussion then had, it is fair to presume that we knew our own minds, and voted with due deliberation. Mr. Conley has returned the bill with a veto which, when stripped of quibbles and untenable argument, is simply this: that he is in possession of the office and does not wish to give it up, and no man can doubt but that he is trusting to the effect upon our minds of rumors and threats of Federal interference which are floating about to scare us into a submission to a usurpation which otherwise we would not have the boldness to attempt; and it is now a question whether we will ourselves vote to sustain him in this most patent, acknowledged and flagrant usurpation of the office of Governor of this State. It is not a question whether we will submit to the rule of a Governor imposed upon us by a superior physical force to which we are powerless to offer any adequate resistance, for in such submission there would be no abandonment of principle or personal dishonor; but it is a plain question whether, after having solemnly voted to exercise the power they possessed, we will now reverse that vote, and agree that Mr. Conley [illegible] tyro in the law, and because his friends darkly give out that he will be supported in this usurpation by the Federal Government. This is the question of principle, and we cannot twist it to mean anything else. Sir, no legislator has a right to vote to sustain a usurper. The gentleman from Fulton admits that he regards Mr. Conley as a usurper, and yet argues that it is a question of policy whether we shall, by our votes, sustain him in his usurpation. The usurpation of the office of Governor is a violation of the Constitution and laws of this State, and, according to a good old law would have been high treason. How we could vote to sustain him in this violation of law without an abandonment of principle, passes my comprehension. We might, consistently with principle, submit to an accomplished usurpation if we were powerless to resist, but when we vote beforehand to allow the usurpation, we become at once part and parcel of it. If I were certain that the dire forebodings of the gentleman from Fulton would be realized, I would still vote for the bill, because at least it would but result in having Mr. Conley acting unlawfully as Governor, and in the one case I would be innocent of the violation of the law, and in the other case I would be a party to the usurpation.

Mr. Conley evidently regards himself as a very fit man for Governor. During this session he has sent us two vetoes, in each of which he has said, virtually, that if some other man were Governor the law would be very proper, but under the present circumstances it is entirely unnecessary. And he now presumes to veto the bill which will terminate his official labors, even though he says in the message that "he can give no free judgment in the matter, since he is necessarily interested in the result."

Sir, it is for no slight causes that the people of Georgia demand of us the passage of this bill. It is not merely for the purpose of having a Democratic Governor instead of a Republican. If this were all, as ardent a party man as I am, I would vote to allow Mr. Conley to remain during the unexpired term, rather than incur the expense and turmoil of an election. But there are grave reasons which demand of me imperatively a different course. The gentleman from Fulton demands one good reason why Mr. Conley should not be allowed to remain. I will give him one of a dozen which could be given. The administration of the past three years has been disastrous to the best interest of the State. Not only have our people been ruled over by strangers to our soil who found their chief pleasure in harrassing and basely slandering them, but like a hungry horde of hyenas, they have preyed upon and plundered our State; in plain words, they have stolen all the money upon which they could lay their hands, and have illegally issued bonds of the State to an untold amount, and to-day the State stands nominally pledged to a debt or tens of millions for which she has received no equivalent. What has been the amount of this stealing and this corruption no man knows, and only months of patient investigation can reveal. Now, Sir, the head devil of all this villainy has fled the State a confessed and self-convicted felon. As he fled, he endeavored to cast his high office upon his henchman, Conley, that he might screen him and his accomplices from the just consequences of their guilt; and now, when the people have returned to the possession of their own, and propose to exercise their constitutional right to elect a Governor in order that no man who has had any connection with the corruption of the past three years, shall remain in power to screen the guilty, this henchman of Bullock assumes to usurp the office. Sir, this one reason is sufficient for me, although, did time permit, I could give many more. The gentleman from Fulton says that he believes Mr. Trammel entitled to exercise the Executive powers, and that he is ready to make the issue with Mr. Conley on this point. Well, there will be no doubt of the new Governor's right to exercise the Executive powers, and I cannot see why the consequences will be any more serious in the one case than in the other, or why he should not be as ready to encounter the consequences in either case as in the other.

Mr. Speaker, I will give but one other reason why we should vote to override the veto. To refuse to do so would be to endanger the liberties of the people. Usurpation, except when based upon the power of the sword, is ever cautious in its advances. It grows by the submission of the people to each slight aggression. Each concession is an invitation to additional encroachment. Recall to mind the history of usurpations of the Federal Government in the last six years. The Constitution had, in the main, survived the throes of a great civil war, and if the laws now recognized as valid had then been passed, the whole country would have been shocked by the unblushing violation of the Constitution; but little by little encroachments and usurpations of power were made by Congress and submitted to by the people until now the President of the United States is as powerful for tyranny as the Czar of Russia. If we voluntarily allow this usurpation on the part of Mr. Conley, he may with equal warrant of law claim to remain in office after the expiration of Bullock's term, and if a few threats of Federal interference can be whispered around, there will be equally as good an argument why we should submit to the second usurpation. Every argument advanced in this House against the passage of the bill is based upon the supposition that Mr. Conley will refuse to obey the law. When the bill was upon its passage, the majority of this House struck out the third section because they said it was wrong to presume that he would not obey the law, and now it is urged that we ought not to pass this bill because he will not obey the law. If this bill passes over the veto it becomes the law of Georgia. The gentleman from Fulton, Mr. Jackson, says if the bill does become a law, he will be among the foremost in exacting obedience to it from Mr. Conley. I know that he will, and I doubt not that he will then find by his side every true man in this House. It is a favorite boast of the law, that none are so low as to be beneath its care, and none so high as to be above its power; and I trust, Sir, that we shall never see the day in Georgia when we will be unable to make any one who denies it, speedily experience its truth.

Card from Henry Jackson.

ATLANTA, GA., November 24, 1871.

Editors Constitution: I have carefully read the leading editorial in the Augusta Constitutionalist of the 23d inst., and desire to express one or two views thereon. I desire to take this course for the reason that the Constitutionalist and I have agreed heretofore upon the policy which should have been pursued by the General Assembly in reference to Mr. Conley's veto message. My course has been criticized by some. I do not agree with the able editor of the Constitutionalist in his last editorial. The election law has been legally passed by the Legislature and every member of that body is sworn to support it. It is the duty of every good citizen to assist in its execution. Whether I was correct or not in my views as to the policy of passing said law, the future will demonstrate; but the same duty that urged me to oppose its passage, now as cogently compels me to urge its execution. Let us cease discussing this law, and all join in the election and inauguration of an honest Democratic Executive. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Heaven grant that the action of this General Assembly not only in its course in reference to the "Conley veto message," but in regard to all other matters, may prove to the interest, prosperity and peace of our noble old State.

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES

INDIANA.

TERRE HAUTE, November 27.—Hon. D. W. Voorhees, in a card published in the Journal of this city, proposes an important Democratic party movement. He says: "I keenly appreciate the importance of an authoritative expression of principles which are to guide us in the future as in the past. It should be made at an early date, in order that the organization shall be perfected and confidence restored by the time the approaching campaign is upon us. This, however, should be the work of a national convention, embracing delegates from all the States. I am in favor of calling such a convention at some central point in the West, on a day not later than the 22d of February next. The call should be issued by the Nationaal Executive Committee and delegates should be appointed by State and District Conventions. The business of this body should be to carefully and patiently weigh all the views laid before it, and to agree upon and publish a clear and definite declaration of principles upon all matters affecting the political welfare of the people and the safety of our free institutions. This being done, it should adjourn to the day fixed for the nomination of the candidate for President. In the meantime, the people of the States can discuss, approve, or disapprove of what has been done.

It would be the duty of all Democrats taking part in politics to submit to the voice of the majority. If there are such as prefer their own convictions even to the platform of the National Convention they can step aside quietly without embarrassing anybody else. Let us, however, have political as well as personal harmony, and success is within our reach. If the entire Democratic vote can be consolidated, inspired with enthusiasm, and brought to the polls, General Grant cannot be re-elected. It was voters in our party that staid at home on the days of the late election which brought such widespread defeat. There is no increase of the Republican vote. I make the above suggestion knowing that it is entirely practical, and that it meets an urgent demand of the present crisis. I shall urge it upon the National Executive Committee and ask for it the favorable consideration of conservative men everywhere.

GENUINE CONVERSION.—Spurgeon tells the following:

"I like the story of the servant maid, who, when she was asked on joining the church, are you converted?" "I hope so, sir." "What makes you think you are really a child of God?" "Well, sir, there is a great change in me from what there used to be." "What is that change?" "I don't know; but, sir, there's a change in all things; but there is one thing—I always sweep under the mats now."

NOTICE TO RUPTURED PERSONS OF ATLANTA.

RADICAL CURE OF ABDOMINAL HERNIA OR RUPTURE,

Without Inconvenience to the Patient, or Restriction in Exercise or Diet.

DR. J. L. ROWE, Artistic Surgeon, having devoted his time exclusively to the study and treatment of Abdominal Hernia, in its various forms and stages, respectfully announces to the public that he has opened an office, Room No. 2, Capitol Building, Atlanta Georgia, where, during business hours, each day, he can be consulted.

During an experience of over twenty years, Dr. R. has treated several thousand ruptured patients of both sexes and of all ages, a great number of whom were restored to health, vigor and a sound body.

This has been effected by assiduous study and the use of his inventions, in conjunction with his popular remedies, being an external application, promoting a speedy and permanent cure, without the suffering and injuries resulting from the rigid and insupportable pressure of a Truss.

So reliable is this treatment that the patient, in most instances from the first application, will cease to be annoyed by a return of the rupture, and will be enabled to take the most active exercise on foot or on horseback, with perfect security against the dangers of strangulated Hernia.

DR. ROWE'S ABDOMINAL SUPPORTER.

Relief and cure for Female, Uterine or Abdominal weaknesses, Corpulency or general Debility. Very light and comfortable.

The New York Methodist, of 9th May, 1866, highly recommends Dr. Rowe's successful treatment of Ruptures and Deformities. The editor has extensive acquaintance with his patients, and positive knowledge of very wonderful cures. He therefore invites the earnest attention of the afflicted and the closest scrutiny of the profession.

No charge for examination under any circumstances whatever. I invite the ruptured, and all persons interested, to call and examine for themselves.

Positive certificates of many radical cures can be shown—among others, several clergymen.

Don't forget the address.

To-morrow afternoon Colonel G. W. Adair will sell ten residence lots near Evans' Chapel.

We had the pleasure of a call yesterday from Geo. H. Hancock, editor of the Good Templar's Advocate. He will be in the city for several days on business connected with his journal.

HOG STEALING.—Justice W. M. Butt yesterday committed Merritt Barrow, (colored,) to jail for stealing a hog on Saturday night, from the pen of L. H. Davis, killing it and selling it. He gave the police officers a good chase before he was captured. On Sunday he sold two canvassed hams for one dollar each.

DRY GOODS.—See the advertisement of L. Z. Steinheimer, 37 Whitehall street. He offers to sell his entire stock of dry goods, clothing, shoes and boots, guns, pistols, watches, jewelry, silverware, hardware, fancy goods, etc., at cost and below cost for the next thirty days, and whatever is left of his stock on the 27th of December will be sold at auction. He says his stock must be sold before New Year's, as he is to engage in other business. Give him a call and convince yourself that he means business and that he will carry out what he says.

THE GOLD AUCTION SALE AT MAYSON'S.—Ordinarily people distrust jewelry offered at auction sales. We have taken the trouble to examine the great stock to be offered at public outcry at Mayson's, under DeGive's Opera House, and find the jewelry and silver ware is genuine.

The stock is part of the immense stock of D. Stevens & Co., 399 Broadway, New York. This firm failed in September for $365,000, and these goods are sold under bankrupt proceedings by Castleberry & Manasse.

The stock is superb. Everything is warranted by Mayson, and the privilege offered of submitting the goods to any test. The chance to purchase is a fine one. Fine watches, undoubted diamonds, splendid silver ware of every sort are on hand. The opportunity for housekeepers is a golden one.

DEGIVES.—The very large audience at the above place last evening, were pleased and delighted with the entertainment, which was well and very satisfactorily given. Naval Engagements was most happily rendered. The lateness of the hour prevents an extended notice of this fine Comedy, nor can we particularize, were all done well. As Mary Mortimer, Miss Alice Dunning Lingard evinced much merit. Miss Blanch Galton gave an excellent impersonation of Mrs. Pontifex, Kingston of Mathews, the Lieutenant of Evans, the Dennis of Dunning. In fact each member of the cast were exceedingly happy in their delineations. Lingard's character songs were excellent, while his personations were inimitable. His songs and sketches were presented with good effect and were rapturously applauded. In fact, as an actor in his line, he is without an equal. The comedietta of Marriage at any price, passed off pleasantly and smoothly. To-night is the last one of the engagement, a perfect gem of a bill is presented, and, doubtless the audience will be as large a one as that of last evening.

DEMOCRATIC MEETING.—In accordance with the call published, a number of the Democratic citizens of Fulton county met at the City Hall last night.

On motion of Colonel T. T. Smith, Colonel Luther J. Glenn was called to the chair.

On taking his seat, Colonel Glenn thanked the meeting for the honor conferred upon him, and explained the object of the meeting. He trusted that moderation would prevail, and good men and true Democrats sent to the Gubernatorial Convention. But one sentiment should prevail, and that to nominate a candidate for Governor who would command the confidence of the people, and not betray or abuse that confidence.

John B. Goodwin and W. G. Whidby were requested to act as secretaries. J. Henly Smith was nominated, but declined.

Colonel R. J. Cowart moved that a committee of seven be appointed to report the names of suitable persons to be voted for as delegates.

T. W. J. Hill moved to amend by inserting twelve instead of seven.

Col. Cowart declined to accept the amendment. For forty years he had attended Democratic meetings, and seven was a good old number. Twelve was too large and unwieldy.

Mr. Hill insisted on his amendment. If the thing was cut and dried beforehand, a committee of five or seven was enough.

Mr. Bell offered as a substitute that the meeting ... committee of three than seven. He denounced the "cutting and drying" movement. He had heard that tickets had been printed and distributed before sundown.

Capt. G. W. Anderson made a few brief and pointed remarks.

Hon. George Hillyer thought that it would give more satisfaction to have a committee of twelve.

H. S. Hill thought twelve too large, but would split the difference and go for nine.

Mr. Dell's motion to go into a committee of the whole was lost.

Mr. T. W. J. Hill's amendment was carried, and the motion of Colonel Cowart, as amended, adopted.

The Chair appointed the following as the committee: R. J. Cowart, L. C. Wells, T. J. Hightower, W. J. Garrett, J. L. Winter, T. W. J. Hill, C. A. Pitts, D. Mayer, H. B. Hill, W. R. Phillips, J. H. Mecaslin, J. G. Reynolds.

The committee retired, and loud calls being made for Colonel E. F. Hoge, that gentleman responded in his terse and felicitous style. No one not a true Democrat in the hour of Georgia's need should be trusted now in office. There were plenty of men who were true, and had been true all the time, to fill all the offices. He was in a position to know that there was no danger of military interference in Georgia.

He advised the Democratic party to be as "wise as serpents and as harmless as doves." Georgia would soon be disenthralled, all her jewels restored, and the last shackle of Radicalism shattered under her feet.

After the prolonged applause which greeted Colonel Hoge had subsided, the audience, with one unanimous voice, cried out "Jackson."

Captain H. Jackson, in responding, said that he heartily endorsed all that had been so forcibly expressed by Colonel Hoge. He had advocated the election of honest Democrats—men whose character was above reproach, and expected to continue to do so. He was born a Democrat and expected to die one, and an honest one. Our condition was anomalous. Gov. Bullock had plundered and robbed us, and fled to escape the righteous wrath of an injured and outraged people. Governor Conley, his successor, was even more corrupt than Bullock. His veto of the election bill, and his course as Senator, evidenced that fact. All were bound to carry out the election law, and he hoped that all would stand with their shoulder to the wheel for an honest and upright administration of the government, and nominate and elect an honest and unswerving Democrat.

Hon. George Hillyer being called for, said that he endorsed all that had been said by Colonel Hoge and Captain Jackson. He recognized in them and Dr. Wilson, their colleague, a fine example of Democrats your can trust.

Dr. Wilson was called for, and asked to be excused, as he was no orator.

Captain John Thomas said that he had no speech to make. The Radical party now was a dead cock in the pit. Whenever it showed its head he intended to speak, and until then he begged to be excused.

Colonel W. H. Hulsey said, in obedience to the call of the audience that he had less encouragement to speak than many others present. Hoge, Hillyer and Jackson had been elected—he had be defeated. He urged unanimity and harmony as essential to success.

In response to the demands of the meeting Colonel L. J. Glenn said that he had no speech to make, except that on the 6th of December the municipal election comes off. Every good Democrat should be at the polls. They should go early and vote before dinner. Democrats should not stay away because it was reported the Republicans would have no ticket. They should not say "Well, James and Wells and Leyden and Grant will be elected, and it is no use for me to go." Let there be a full Democratic vote of 4,000. It is the first election that occurs before the Gubernatorial election. Roll up a big Democratic majority and it will send an electic thrill of pleasure from Dade to Chatham, and from Muscogee to Pickens. Like Aaron Turner's religion, it would be good anywhere. Elect as your Governor whoever may be nominated, whether it be Smith or Wofford, Hoge (a voice in the crowd, Glenn,) or Glenn, who is no candidate.

The committee returned and through their chairman, Col. R. J. Cowart, reported the following names for delegates to the Gubernatorial Convention: Col. R. F. Maddox, Dr. C. L. Redwine, Col. T. T. Smith, W. A. Wilson, Col. W. R. Phillips and Capt. J. T. Glenn.

On motion the report of the committee was unanimously adopted and the delegates named elected by acclamation.

Colonel Cowart was called upon for a speech and replied that he had none to make, but would like to make one in Atlanta before long. The last Legislature had inflicted almost untold injuries upon our State, and the present Legislature had a herculean task before them to restore us. The talk of bayonets was a bugaboo. We had seen them. Who wouldn't rather prefer an honest Ruger to a thieving Bullock. The Colonel created as great a furore as in antebellum days, when he made the welkin ring and bore down all opposition with the ponderous shafts of eloquence and wit.

The meeting adjourned in the best of spirits.

It is understood that the sentiment of the meeting was largely in favor of Speaker Smith as the candidate for Governor.

[CORRECTED DAILY.]

CONSTITUTION OFFICE, ATLANTA, November 27, 6 o'clock, P. M.

While the necessities and the wants of the people have not diminished, their ability to supply them, judging from commercial transactions, appears to increase. Trade is active, but not as brisk as it should be. The great drawback is—the scarcity of money. While perhaps the restrictions upon interest may have some influence in creating this scarcity, yet, we think the evil has a broader foundation. It is due to the fact that we send the money out of the country for hay, corn, oats, bacon, mules, leather, cloth, brooms, passenger and freight cars, etc. The last item, of passenger and freight cars, exerts a more detrimental influence than the mere sending of the money out of the country. Many of the roads have workshops fitted up, skilled workmen and material. Many of these workmen are kept on half time during part of the year. The workshops are exempt from taxation, and pay nothing into the treasury. The workmen are deprived from adding by one half as much as they can toward the wealth of the State. In the end, the railroad suffers more than she gains. If our people would thrive and see money plenty, they must foster manufactures at home and keep all the money here possible.

GOOD HEALTH AND LONG LIFE.—There is nothing more worthy of careful consideration than a general knowledge of the plainest and most common-sense laws of medicine and health. Upon this understanding and observation depends our health, strength, and longevity. We do not propose to make doctors of everybody; but we would have all sufficiently well posted as to be able to protect themselves against the impositions of bigoted quacks and misguided fools and knaves who prey upon the fears of the unthinking masses, only to plunge them into a ruin from which nought but death will release them.

Our theory is, progress in medicine, as in everything else. The medical bigot, who is as wise as an owl, opposes all innovations or reformations—no advancement for him. He wants to stand where science stood two thousand years ago. He believes in blood-letting, puking and purging, as the only remedies for all afflictions. We believe a warm stomach will regulate itself; Plantation Bitters aids the stomach in generating a natural warmth, ...

FULL MEASURE.—While Dr. Price's Special Flavorings are full measure, other flavoring extracts are short one-half what they are said to contain—arranged to look large and sell cheap—a cheat on the consumer.

nov28-deod1w&w1t

STOP those Chills that have been harassing you so long, as they sometimes end in that fatal disease called by some the "Up Country Yellow Fever." They can be very easily stopped by taking Simmons' Liver Regulator. Do not delay; go at once to your druggist and get a package and be cured.

nov28-d6t&w1t

AN ESTABLISHED REMEDY.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are wide known as an established remedy for Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, and other troubles of the Throat and Lungs. nov28-dtues-thur-sat

THE TRUE GROUNDS OF CONFIDENCE.—Whence comes that firm reliance, that absolute, undoubting faith in efficacy of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a remedy for indigestion, bilious disorders, intermittent and remittent fevers, which notoriously prevails in all parts of the United States? This confidence has been growing for twenty years, and it is still extending. It is not the result of credulity; it has not been engendered by any human device, but is the spontaneous and natural consequence of experience. What people see daily going on under their own eyes they cannot question. When families in unhealthy districts, that resort to this wholesome vegetable tonic as a preventive, escape periodical fevers, and their immediate neighbors, who neglect that precaution, are prostrated by the disease, how is it possible that the phenomenon should be without its lesson? In like manner when it is seen that obstinate cases of dyspepsia, of liver complaint, of constipation, of nervous weakness, and of general debility, yield to the operation of the famous remedy, how can even incredulity itself withhold its endorsement? Eye-witnesses of the salutary effects of the bitters, are to be found in every civilized settlement on this continent. The thousands upon thousands who owe their restoration to health and strength, or their preservation from sickness to its extraordinary medical properties, are enthusiastic in its praise. The multitudes who recommend it in a neighborly way to their friends and acquaintances, as well as those who make public their estimate of its virtues, are always ready to state their reasons for the faith that is in them. They have all either felt or witnessed its benificent operations. nov28-deod1w&w1t

WASHINGTON, November 26.—Penniston's patent for hay and cotton presses has been extended.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, November 26.—The Republican Committee resolved last night in favor of the enactment of the new city charter and the general combination of all honest men for the election of a Mayor in whom capacity shall unite with integrity.

A special dispatch to the World, dated at London, says that at a council of workingmen last night, Mr. Scott Russell stated that the House of Lords were still anxious to perfect an alliance, and that a joint meeting of both councils would soon be held.

The Times reports that Mayor Hall will arrested.

Brigadier General Stockwell was badly burned by the breaking of a kerosene lamp.

Cotton has gradually advanced. Sales for the week 86,500, which 69,000 were for future delivery, and 17,500 on the spot and to arrive. Of spot cotton, exporters took about 7,100, spinners 5,600, and speculators 500.

The hog products have been active, and part future delivery, and prices fluctuated considerable. Beef products have been firm. Dairy products dull but firm. Whisky and wool have been steady. Naval stores declined in spirits of turpentine and advanced in rosins. In other domestic products changes have not been important.

The cotton movement as compared with last week shows a slight increase in receipts and a small falling off in exports. Receipts from all ports for the week 104,743 bales, against 101,494 bales last week; 105,400 the previous week; 96,708 for three weeks since. Total receipts since September 1, 1871, 770,274 bales, against 918,663 for the corresponding period the previous year, showing a decrease of 148,389. FRANCE.

PARIS, November 26.—The decision of the Commission on Pardons, in cases of condemned Communist prisoners, is still kept a secret.

There is great anxiety among all classes to learn the fate of General Rossel.

General Rossel has written Thiers, and says he is ready to die, but imploring that he may be spared the military degradation.

The General displays great firmness, and works in prison indefatigably. He has just finished the second volume of his work on Reorganization.
